Plans Being Perfected for the Various Sections Considered.

The Os-Aple parade continues to grow in size like a snowball relling down bill. The pienest section of the parade promises to be one of the biggest attractions of the night pageant. Charles B. Stovens is chairman of the committee which has the organization of this section in charge. The pieneer section will include an old stage coach of the type that was used before the coming of the railroads. The cow camp chuck wagon will also be in the parade, and the old street car which used to run out San Antonio street and back hiagoffin avenue, will appear in the parade with Maj. W. J. Fewel, judge Joseph Magoffin. Z. T. White and other ploneers association will assist in the formation of this section and will arrange for an exhibition of the various methods of transportation, which have been used in the southwest from the indian pack saddle to the modern alrabile.

Chinese Section. parade promises to be one of the big-

Chinese Section.

The Chinese section is to be another unique division of the big parade. The residents of Chinatown have been at work for the past two weeks arranging for their part in the parade. A number of floats, an immense dragon to be carried by men and typical orienta costumes will be seen in the Chinese division, A purse of $1500 has been made up by the Chinatown merchants and business men to pay the cost of this part of the pageant. Two Chinese have been sent to San Francisco to geture the dragon which is used in the Chinese festivals there, and also to obtain appropriate costumes for the China boys to wear in the parade.

The State Fleats,

The State Floats, The division devoted to the various state floats is also being given special attention. This will be headed by the floats representing the two new states, by the Mexican float from Juarez, the Texas floats and the floats of the other states in order. A call has been issued by chairman J. F. Coles for volunteers to undertake the work of decorating the floats from each of the states and the residents of these suites will be invited to assist in this work.

Persons yelled at him. Others thought it was funny. He had enough ples to gladden the heart of any youngster, when patrelman Smith came along. The officer tried to find out where the infant baker lived, but could not. Then he tried to coax the youngof the new court will be exceedingly busy.

All cases in which appeals were taken from and after July 1 from the district courts of the counties comprising the eighth judicial district have, according to law, been filed for hearing in this court.

Monday, October 2, will be the first submission day and the new docket will be formally opened. A regular weekly submission day will probably be set as soon as all is in working order. The date of the first decision day is necessarily uncertain, but it will probably be within a week or ten days after the first submission day A regular decision day will be later set.

All furniture for the judges and clerk has new been installed, the court room has been fitted out and the new quarters are in readiness. where the infant baker lived, but could not. Then he tried to coax the youngster to go with him. The child refessed, until he was permitted to take along a part of the output of the afternoon's baking.

At the first candy store Smith effected an exchange of committees and landed the boy in the East Twenty-second street police station.

From there the baker was sent to the Children's society for safe keeping. At 2 o'clock last night no one had called for him or reported his loss.

Meyera and Miss Smith lived in the same neighborhood in Brooklyn when he was a young man and she a school girl. The little girl fell in love with the youth and he humored her by calling her his sweetheart. When she grew into young womanhood, Meyers fell deeply in love with ber, and when he was 27 years old, and she was 18; they became engaged without the consent of Miss Smith's parents. The intist were furious when they beard of the engagement and attempted to break it off at once. But Miss Smith doctared she would parevent it. There was a year of almost continual strife between parents and daughter, and Mayers, desputing of ever winning Miss Smith over the objections of her parents, agreed to break off the engagement.

Meyers planned to leave the city and seek forgetfulness among strangers, but at their hast meeting Miss Smith over the objections of her parents, agreed to break off the engagement.
